Iudge Dykman in the Supreme Court yesterday made a decision in the contest between the candidates of the Republican wings of the IId Assembly District for Assembly as to which of their names should be placed on the official Republican ballot. The contestants were Joseph E. Ennis and Richard S. Emmett. The Judge decided that Joseph E. Ennis's name should be printed on the ballot. He is the nominee of the Republicans in the district named, known as the Judge Robertson adherents. In his decision, the Judge says: "My conclusion is that the committee appointed by the convention held in Masonic Hall was the regular and legitimate district committee; that the convention called by that committee was regular, and that the nomination of Mr. Ennis was regular and the certificate of his nomination is lawful, and he is the lawful candidate for member of Assembly. The action of the County Clerk must therefore be reversed."

The clerk in charge of the Consulate said that he told Gammelin to go to the Postoffice first and then take another package to the Cunard pier. Gammelin, however, went to the pler first, and on his way from there to the postoffice lost the bag. He thinks it was lost between Chambers-st, and Broadway and Mair-st. He was much concerned over the loss of the bag, which, it was said, contained much important mail

THE THIRD-AVE. BRIDGE APPROACHES.

CHANGES IN THE PLANS ASKED FOR BY THE NORTH SIDE BOARD OF TRADE.

The Committee on Bridges of the North Side Board of Trade, of which William R. Beal is chairman, gave a public hearing on Friday evening on pro posed changes in the approaches to the new Third-ave, bridge across the Harlem River. The chief engineer, Louis A. Risse, of the Department of Street Improvements, exhibited several large maps and lingrams showing the southerly approach as now in diagrams showing the southern applicated as well course of construction and the change demanded by the North Side Board of Trade. Mr. Beal explained the present plan, which provides for two approaches
-one extending westwardly to Lexington-ave, and the other eastwardly to a point in One-nundred-and-twenty-ninth-st., midway between Second and Third aves. There is no direct approach from Third-ave. These approaches are only 30 feet wide, and, he said. are entirely inadequate to the present traffic across with sidewalks, pedestrians having to climb up and down a flight of steps and under an archway to get

The easterly approach is particularly objectionable, the speaker asserted, because it lands in an unimportant side street, which is overshaitowed by the elevated structure, which covers not only the street, but the entire southerly block. Mr. Risse's plan provides for the widening of the westerly side of Third-ave, from One-hundred-and-twenty-eightnest, to the Harlem River, making a direct approach from Third-ave. This will not interfere with the elevated structure, but will make necessary the removal of a portion of the Mount Morris Hotel and the Third Avenue Cable Company's station.

President James L. Wells spoke in favor of Mr. Risse's plan, as did also Albert E. Davis, who said the attempt to divert traffic from its natural channel was a crime against natural laws. J. Homer Hildgeth offered resolutions demanding a change from the present double approach to a single direct approach of way of Third-ave, and for an additional approach on the North Side by way of the Southern Boulevard. A committee will wait upon the Commissioner of Public Works and endeavor to secure the change. The easterly approach is particularly objectiona-
